For our struggle is not against flesh and blood,
but against the rulers,
against the authorities,
against the powers
of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in heavenly places.

All-School Retreat

As is the tradition, MCC students and faculty braved the heat in order to participate, once again, in the All-School Retreat. This year, the retreat was held at Rock Springs Camp where MCC'ers participated in horseback riding, canoeing, and swimming in addition to other scheduled activities. Following the opening session, "Make the Most of Every Opportunity," the students and faculty were led in a series of "unheard of games" which was followed by the 53rd Annual Faculty/Student Softball Game. To wrap up the day's events, the students and faculty were challenged to "Seize the Day" in a closing session. The day "away" allowed students and faculty to get acquainted, and it served as the perfect opportunity to start the year out right.

- ♦ Very few people got this far in the "couples" game, but Heather and Chris had no trouble demonstrating the tongue to nose maneuver.
- ♥ MCC students discover that there's more than one use for baseball mitts (besides using them to beat the faculty at softball).

The bright, hot sunshine brings out the craziness in Becky Lovelady and Davinna Beale.

Zach Wright can't seem to catch on to this highly "sophisticated" college stuff.

President Cable takes pride in his pitching ability (and in his ability to intimidate the incoming freshmen)

(top) "What? The score is tied?!" Matt, Pam, Arie, and Mary display the scores at the faculty/student softball game before the goin' gets tough for the faculty.

Calana Needham finds that 5 on 1 isn't as easy as she'd thought when it comes to football.

This grab bag delicacy must be sick — even Ted won't touch it.

The all-conference banana-bobbing team practices for their game next week.

"Hey, Hiram. Are you eating more than you're dripping?" (Uninhibited professors, Hiram Cassel and Ora Davis, offer flavors 31 & 32.)

"A little more enthusiasm, Barry. This is for the year-book."

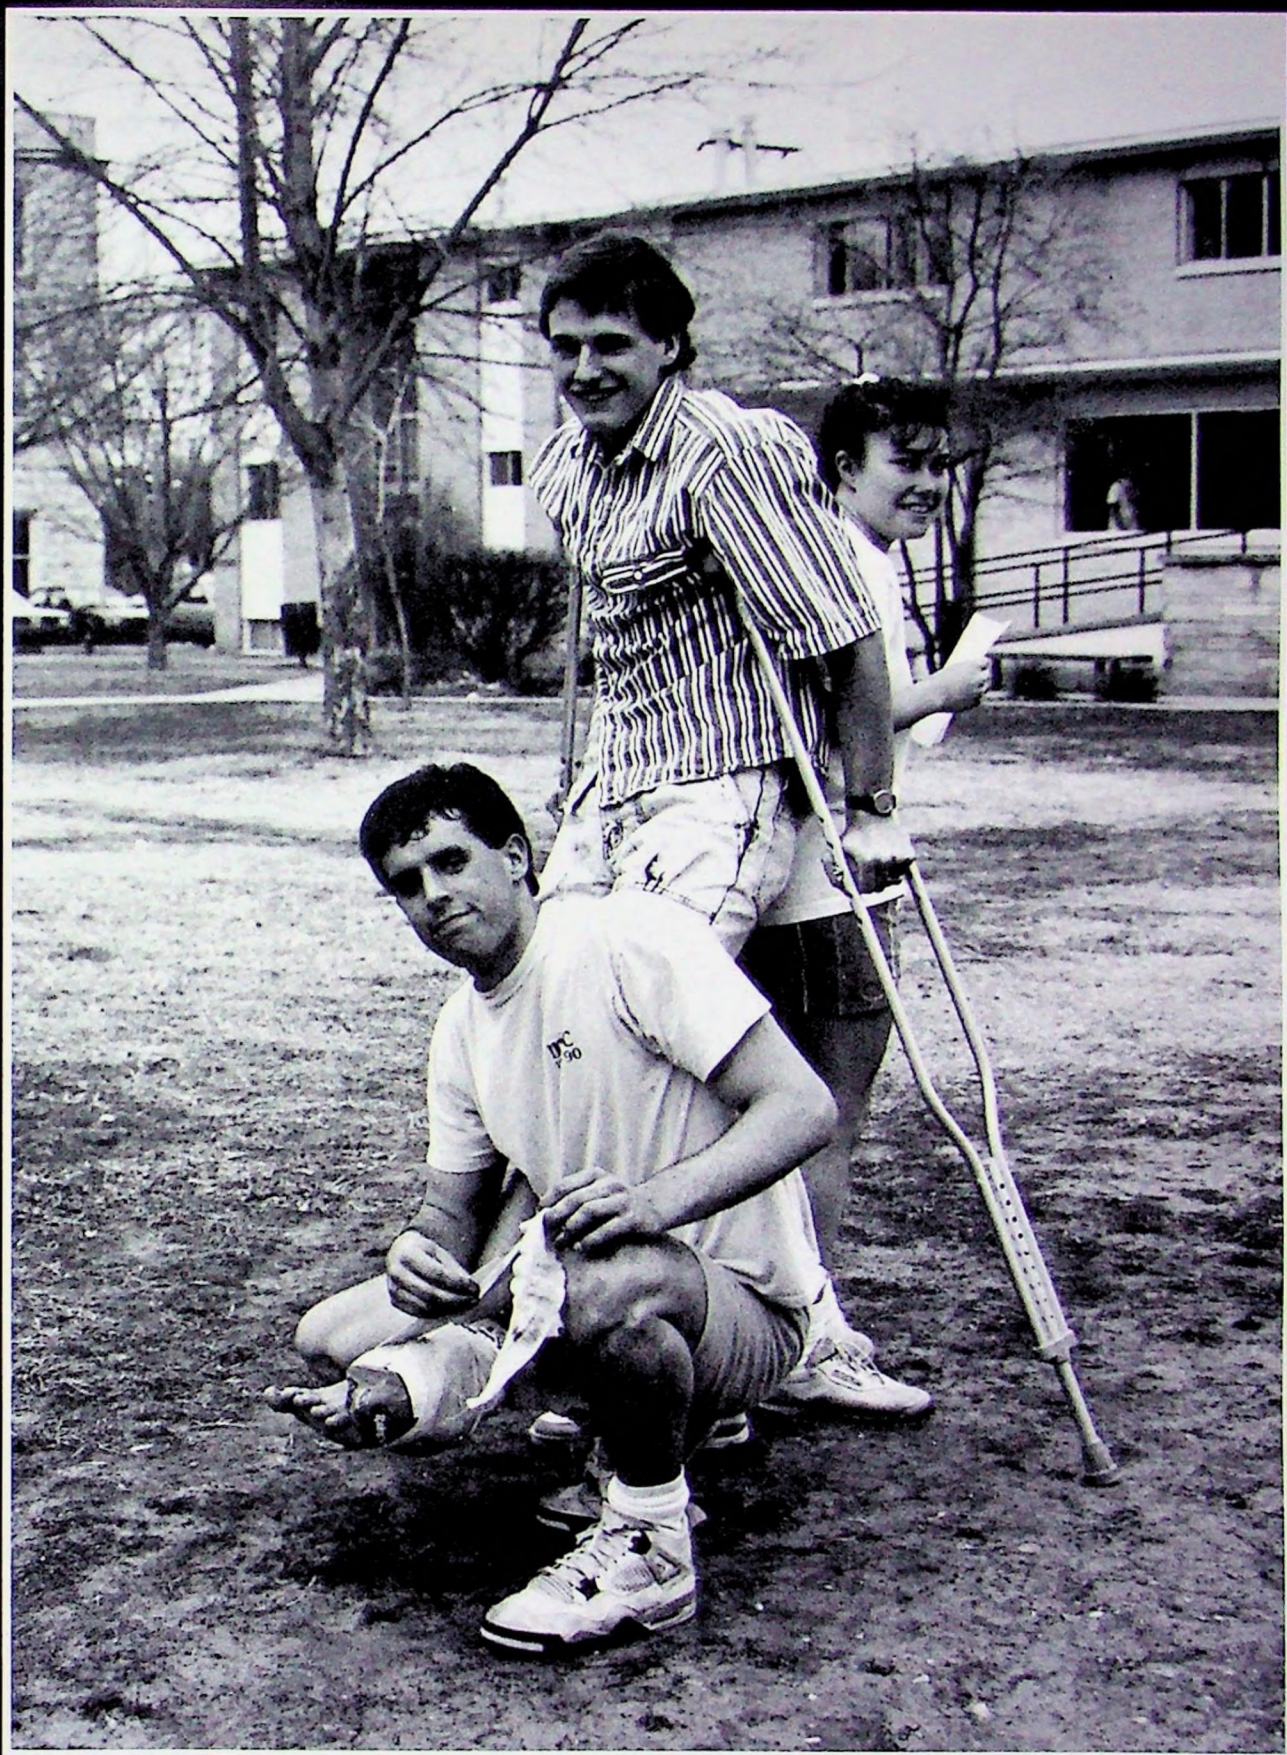

Presidential scholars: Theresa Campbell, Keri Carter, Theresa Jones, Kelly Martin, Lisa Underwood, Brian Leonard, and Ezell Nelson.

MCC students form a choo-choo train to liven up the registration process.

Student Life

So here are a few words about student life: cool, great, boss, awesome, groovy, totally sweet, bad, rad, dude, way fine, super slick. (You'll think these words are cute in a few years.) But MCC student life is more than slang; it's friendship, food, sleep, music, dorms, sports, lounging, playing, laughing, singing, worshipping, classes, road trips, stress, love, general weirdness, backpacks, jeans, boredom, college women, college men, forsaking previous hygiene standards, movies, parties, pink flamingos, posters, shaving cream, firecrackers, toilet paper and cafeteria food.

The thing that makes student life different from before college life or after is the way students treat their bodies. We never sleep, we eat very strange things, and we have only one bathroom for a whole hallway of people. Even after moving out of the dorm, students still never sleep, eat even stranger things, and never clean the bathroom.

College life is a transition. We are born helpless and dependent on others for our every need; during adolescence we start to get the hang of independence; and then, just as we get to college, we realize we can't be independent at all, but must be co-dependent with other people. College life realizes the need we have for each other.

R.D. Cogswell and Todd Hutchison add their own "personal touch" to their dorm room.

Sara Goodwin blushes in embarrassment as she receives a cake (and a song) for the birthday that never was.

◆ "Ohhhh . . . life is no longer worth living. Do you think we still have a chance for an A+ in this class?" (Deb Lundgren and Corrine Wilson)

◆ "Where's my rally towel?" pleads Scott Jenkins.

"Stacie, we send you out as a sheep in the midst of wolves."

"Who's gonna win that Super Bowl game, guys?" (James Osenga, Pam Sheldon, Wendy Cott, and Matt Miles bring their Bronco spirit with them to chapel prior to the Super Bowl game.)

"Tim, your threats are really too intimidating."

"Be careful, Tim. Fred just might stick that toy of yours up your nose!"

◆ Who's Who recipients: Kelly Park, Kim Manes, Tara Griffin, Rebecca Sack, Corrine Wilson, Terri Spurgeon, Dwight Bradshaw, Paula Ratliff, Kelly Hayes, Tim Snell, Genae Willich, Davinna Beale, and Billie Newport.

◆ These guys will try anything to earn money for college — even a lemonade stand in February. (Kevin Segal and Jarrod Kenoyer)

The freshman foursome huddles together to catch up on "the news" while they wait for chapel to begin. (Susan, Heather, Theresa, and Kim)

Mike Willich delivers a victory speech after his half time shooting exhibition.

Audrey never knew how much fun it could be to work in the library. Today she gets to sort alphabet letters!

No matter where you are at MCC, you can always find a friendly lap to sit on. (Becky Lovelady and Julie Armstrong)

Dorm Norms

MCC is not the first in a long tradition of communal living. As Americans, our Quaker heritage is best exemplified in the twenty-four hour togetherness of Johnson Hall, Sanderson Hall, Barnabas, Hannah and her sisters. Dormitory living is more than just a nice way to get to know everyone; it is a difficult test weighing tolerance, creativity, and claustrophobia. On passing the test, grades are allocated via friendships which develop rapidly. One student was quoted saying, "Dorm friendships are like an action movie cut to the chase."

"The Road Not Taken"

 I took the one less traveled by,
 And that has made all the difference.

Weirdos

It's a party every day for these weird people. Wherever they are and whatever they're doing, they're ready to drop it for any amusing alternative. You've seen them — they contort their bodies, and shave their heads, and are always full of MCC spirit. Some like Fisher Price, others join fraternities. (Most girls don't pledge Alpha Beta Soupa, but it looks as though Kelly and Tracey did. They'll have to cut their hair in order to get rid of those encumbrances caused by initiation.) It's not surprising that even their best friends, at times, disclaim them.

Reverting back to her childhood, Tracey shows us how she was almost strangled at the age of five.

Interpersonalism

We didn't need Doctrine T222 to learn that people are happier and find more meaning in life when they are involved in more interpersonal relationships. College friendships develop quickly and remain intact long after lecture notes have been discarded. Scholastic priorities often give way to relationship concerns, creating a grand irony and combat for every Christian college professor; how can we learn that people and relationships are essential to a fulfilling life and still consider classes important? Well, that's where the people are, I guess.

Campus Craziness

MCC students have to let off steam once in awhile, ahh freak out. These urges result in lots of stupid fun. This year there were road trips to Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Topeka, Mexico and Oklahoma City. This year's crazies included: Rick Wright's airless tires, some Johnson Hall guys' missing bedding and the battles of water(loo) at Sanderson. This is an abridged edition because all the weird moments at MCC could fill tons of water balloons, thousands of shaving cream cans and rolls of toilet paper.

Sleepy Hollow — The Legends

Homeless people are required to sleep sitting upright so they don't become too comfortable at the shelter and refuse to leave. Students at MCC might not consider this posture torturous as classrooms provide an especially nice sleep inducing environment (even better than dormitories). And what professors have failed to consider is that students have been falling asleep to storytelling since their green years. Only the milk and cookies have been replaced with soda pop and candy bars, and taking notes has symbolically overtaken tucking in the covers.

Sometimes we think of professors and students as two different genres of people: like morning people and night people, cat people and dog people, coffee drinkers and abstainers, tube squeezers and tube rollers. But because of the small population at MCC, students and teachers can have an affinity close to the student ratio of Jesus and the disciples. Pupils and instructors get to know each other as real people. And even if the professors give bad grades or the students earn them, both learn about each other anyway.

What To Do

College life lends itself to a virtual cornucopia of activities. Students are bombarded daily with ideas and suggestions to rapidly fill up their free time (or study time). The hardest part comes in choosing between so many options: sports, music, gospel teams, jobs, committees, Christian action, Bible studies, church, the library; not to mention social activities like parties, concerts, theatre and dating. With all the frenzy it is surprising to find some students still sitting in the lounge on weekends wondering what to do with themselves.

Current Events & Fads

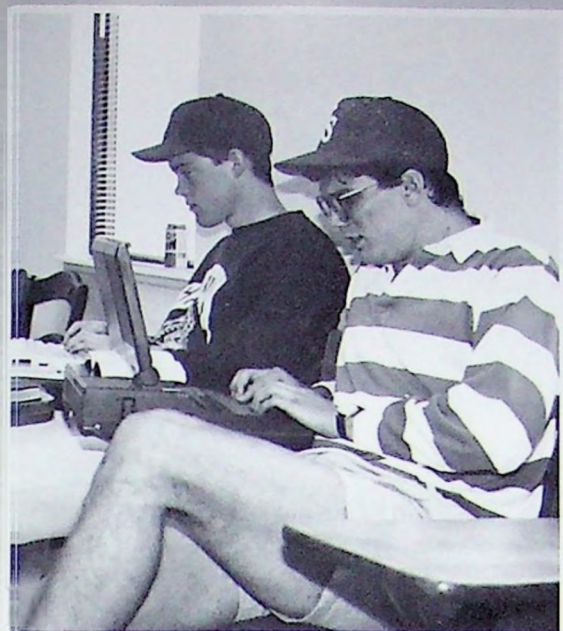

In Vogue

MCC students, trendsetters that they are, showed themselves in anything from sweats to J. Crew this year. A few even broke out (or in) the leisure suits and hosiery. The fashion trend seems post-preppie-on-a-budget with a few folks lost in early-morning-what-ever-is-on-the-floor, and some still clinging to jeans, sweaters, jackets in brown leather, t-shirts and baseball caps. Students enjoy easy-to-wear fashions and machine washables. This year's fashions all ended up at Suds Y'R Duds late night laundry.

Spiritual Life

Whoever loves his brother lives in the light, and there is nothing in him to make him stumble.

— 1 John 2:10

Penetrating In Their Own Ministries . . .

Getting involved outside the walls of MCC's campus can take a little courage and a lot of effort. But many students are swallowing their pride and are venturing out of the comfort zone of their Christian circle in order to make a difference. This enhances spiritual growth on campus and gives them new ways to serve Jesus Christ.

Christian Action is a required credit taken each semester by degree-seeking students. The idea is for students to find their area of interest and use their talents and skills for furthering the kingdom. Diane Salsbery, junior, volunteers at the Crisis Center for her off-campus ministry. "My responsibilities so far have involved 18 hours of training, and I'm on call 60 hours a month." The shelter mainly deals with battered women and suicidal cases. Volunteers are there to protect these women and to serve as encouragers during this time of hardship. "They don't tell you that you can witness, but they don't tell you that you can't either — it's a perfect opportunity!"

Cassie Stipe, sophomore in psychology, volunteers at Life Choice Ministries. "It's very challenging," says Cassie. Her goal with each expectant mother is to open their eyes to the fact that a child is living inside of them, not just a developing "blob of tissue." Both of these students are getting experience in their field of interest.

For those who have a burden for youth, Campus Life serves as a vital ministry opportunity. Over 20 MCC students are presently involved in this organization. Team leaders go to high schools during the week and eat lunch with the kids in addition to holding weekly meetings. Their goal is to work with the youth "where the peer pressure is" as they seek to bring them into a relationship with Christ. They also invite them to church in hopes of incorporating them into a body of believers.

Besides working with Campus Life, one of the most popular ways to become active while at MCC is to get involved in some sort of church ministry. Many students serve as youth ministers and senior ministers for local churches while in college, others gain experience by "filling pulpits" for area churches between ministers, and a few find positions as C.E. or music ministers. In this way, the students are able to gain practical experience that will help them serve more effectively in the churches they work in following graduation.

By ministering actively in these various areas, students are able to experience Christian service right now rather than waiting until after their Christian education is finished. This allows them to "get a taste" of the work they will be involved in after college, and helps them put into practice the knowledge they are gaining in the classroom. In this way, they are able to see the relevance of the material they are learning in college — it all seems much more worth while.

In addition to the different ministries they are involved in, students also set aside time to strengthen their own relationship with God. Chapel times and dorm devos serve this purpose to a certain extent, but students also participate in various Bible studies on and off campus, disciplining one on one, lectus, early morning and late night prayer, as well as other activities sponsored by Student Spiritual Life. Not only do these provide an opportunity to study God's word and worship, but they also serve as a time for revival and provide the foundation that will allow students to minister more effectively as they "penetrate the darkness."

Penetrating in their own lands...

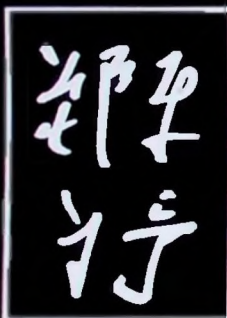

Just as MCC students prepare to be ministers here in the United States, Zheng Le, Fang Ning, and Yves Prophet are all missionaries to their own countries. They study the Bible in hopes of returning to their homeland and ministering to their own peoples.

■ Zheng Le and Fang Ning are all smiles as they are finally reunited at the KCI airport upon Fang's arrival in America in the fall.

◆ Zheng Le uses his musical talents as he performs for various MCC and KSU events.

"After I had sent an application and a demo tape of my music, the school sent me an I-20 form along with a letter to show the Chinese government, stating my intents," says Zheng Le, music major. This was just the beginning of the procedures Zheng had to go through when he decided to come to MCC. (It is amazing that typical American students fret over getting in an application, finding the perfect roommate, and reserving the best dorm room.)

After two years and much prayer, Zheng's fiancée, Fang Ning, was finally able to join him in the States. (It had been so long since he'd seen her that Zheng was afraid he wouldn't recognize her in the airport!) Obtaining a passport from the Chinese government had been the most difficult step for Zheng in coming to the U.S., but for Fang, the process was more complicated. It took her over a year to obtain her visa from the American government. Finally God's plan prevailed in the situation and Fang was able to join Zheng in the middle of the first semester this year. Just a few months later, the two were joined in marriage on December 28th.

Surprisingly enough, the Chinese government views Zheng and Fang's opportunity very positively. "If they disapproved of this, we wouldn't be here," says Ning. "They know that when we finish our studies we will return." In China, all religions are subject to the Chinese government, and all are respected as acceptable. It is wrong for one to try to persuade another to become something else. "In America, Christianity is more true to the Bible, stating that our God is the only God. I hope this has changed in China when we return so we will have a little more freedom," concluded Zheng.

When they are finished with school in three years, Zheng and Fang will return to China. If the government is more open to other religions, Zheng would like to work in a church as a music minister. Otherwise, he will continue to play in the symphony orchestra and teach music. Whatever the situation, Zheng will do what he can to minister for the Lord.

Zheng proudly shows the cast iron skillet identical to the ones found in China.

Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.

— Matthew 28:19-20

Even when Yves is working, one can count on him for a smile.

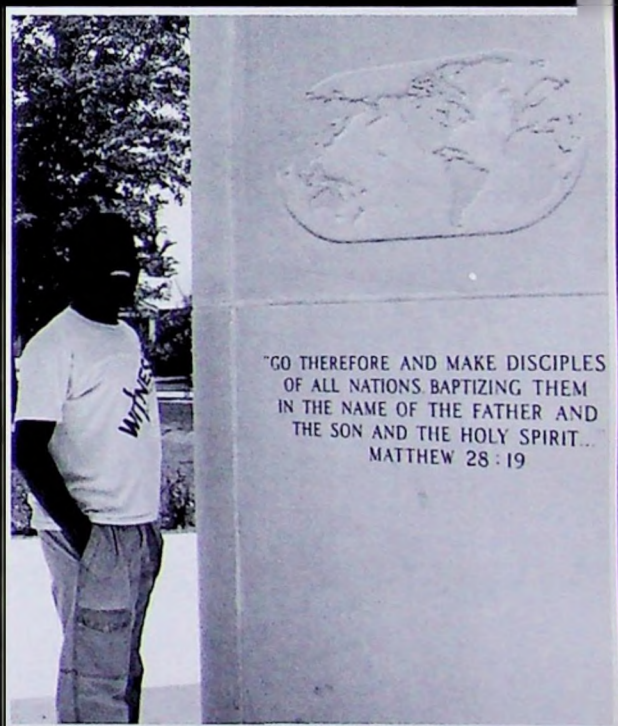

"Never buy a cat in a bag," counseled MCC's "silly Haitian." This advice may seem quite ambiguous, and perhaps senseless, but once one sees Yves' wrinkled brow and his famous teeth, one is sure it is sincere and wise. The library's front desk was often the place where the proverbs of Yves could be heard. He added spice to the campus for 4½ years; his laidback Haitian attitude was refreshing compared to the normal "stressed-out" Bible college student.

This crazy native came to the United States because he was attracted to the music programs. He learned to speak English at Winston-Salem Bible College. Then a missionary friend, Phyllis Long, introduced him to Manhattan Christian College and its opportunities.

Life at MCC was full of adjustments for Yves. Although he was excited about being here in the U.S., Yves was a long way from home, and he missed his girlfriend, family, friends, and church. Sanderson Hall became his home away from home. "I stayed in the dorm to meet new people every year, and I'm still alive — God is good!" His fond memories of Sanderson living include water parties at 2:00 a.m., Lupo's pet chicken, and strange, distinct smells throughout the house that no one could quite explain. Having never seen snow before, winter was another big adjustment. "Ice is expensive in Haiti. I thought this must be the promised land!"

The native Haitian Prophete family of nine is deeply involved in evangelizing the country of Haiti. In 1974, Yves' father, Stephen Prophete, began the Haitian Christian Mission. In its sixteen years of existence, the mission has been responsible for building schools, nutrition centers, medical clinics, and churches. But there is still plenty of the Lord's work to be done. Only 5,000 Haitians belong to the Christian Church — the majority of the population consists of Catholics and Buddhists.

Future plans for Yves include returning to the States to finish a computer science degree and serve as a music minister in a church. When he reflects on what he has learned, Yves believes he is more secure and assured of his salvation. "Bible college plays an important role in Christian development, but it does not make you holy. Holiness is attained only when you work at it on your own."

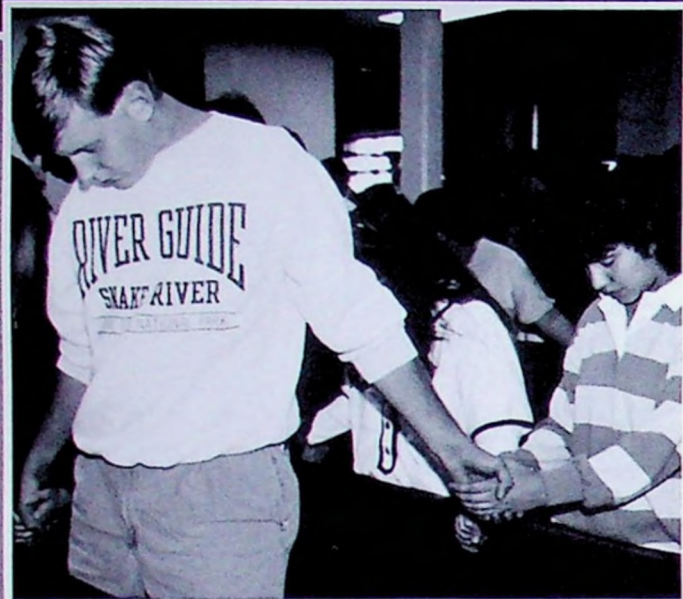

"GO THEREFORE AND MAKE DISCIPLES
OF ALL NATIONS BAPTIZING THEM
IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER AND
THE SON AND THE HOLY SPIRIT...
MATTHEW 28:19

◆ The Three Amigos — Did they add one more?

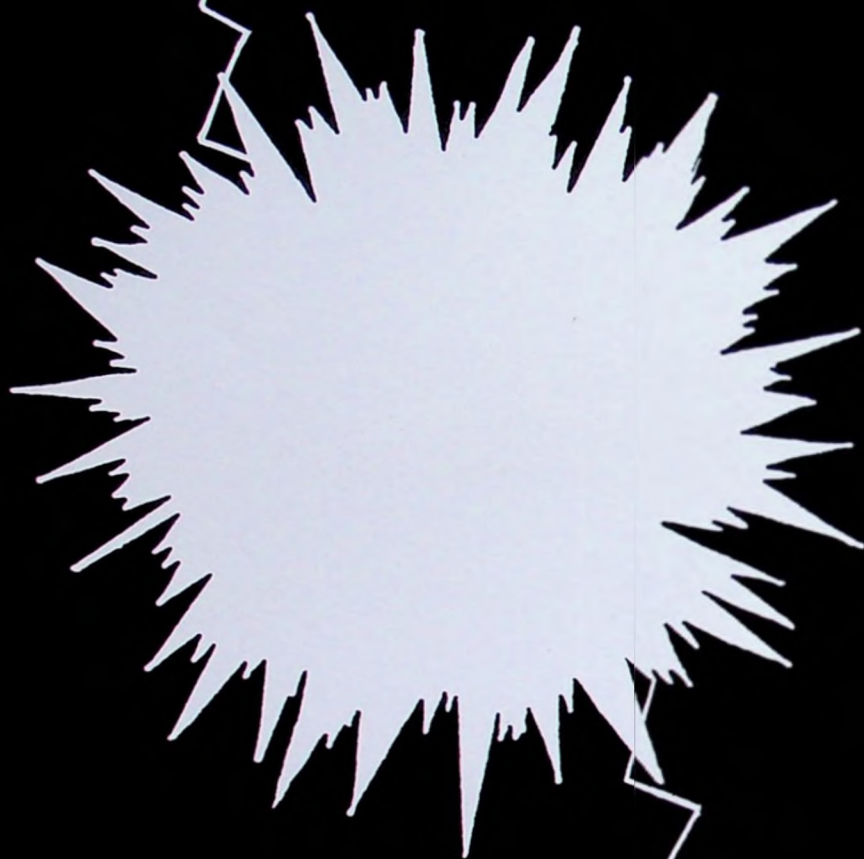

MCC students are living out their Christianity, learning more about ministry and servanthood through cross-cultural missions projects. One group of 19 MCC students traveled to Tijuana, Mexico over Spring Break. They went to work with Amore Ministries, building houses and bathrooms for the poor there, and showed benevolence not only outwardly (by donating time and effort to the needy), but also through spiritual ministry.

Another group of students traveled to Haiti during the summer and ministered to the Haitian people in Ticousin. The students worked with the Christianville Foundation from June 5 through June 19. This group laid a solid foundation for a school house.

Mission trips were taken first to spread the gospel to the needy, but also served to broaden the minds of MCC students. Both the people going and the peoples visited were forever changed!

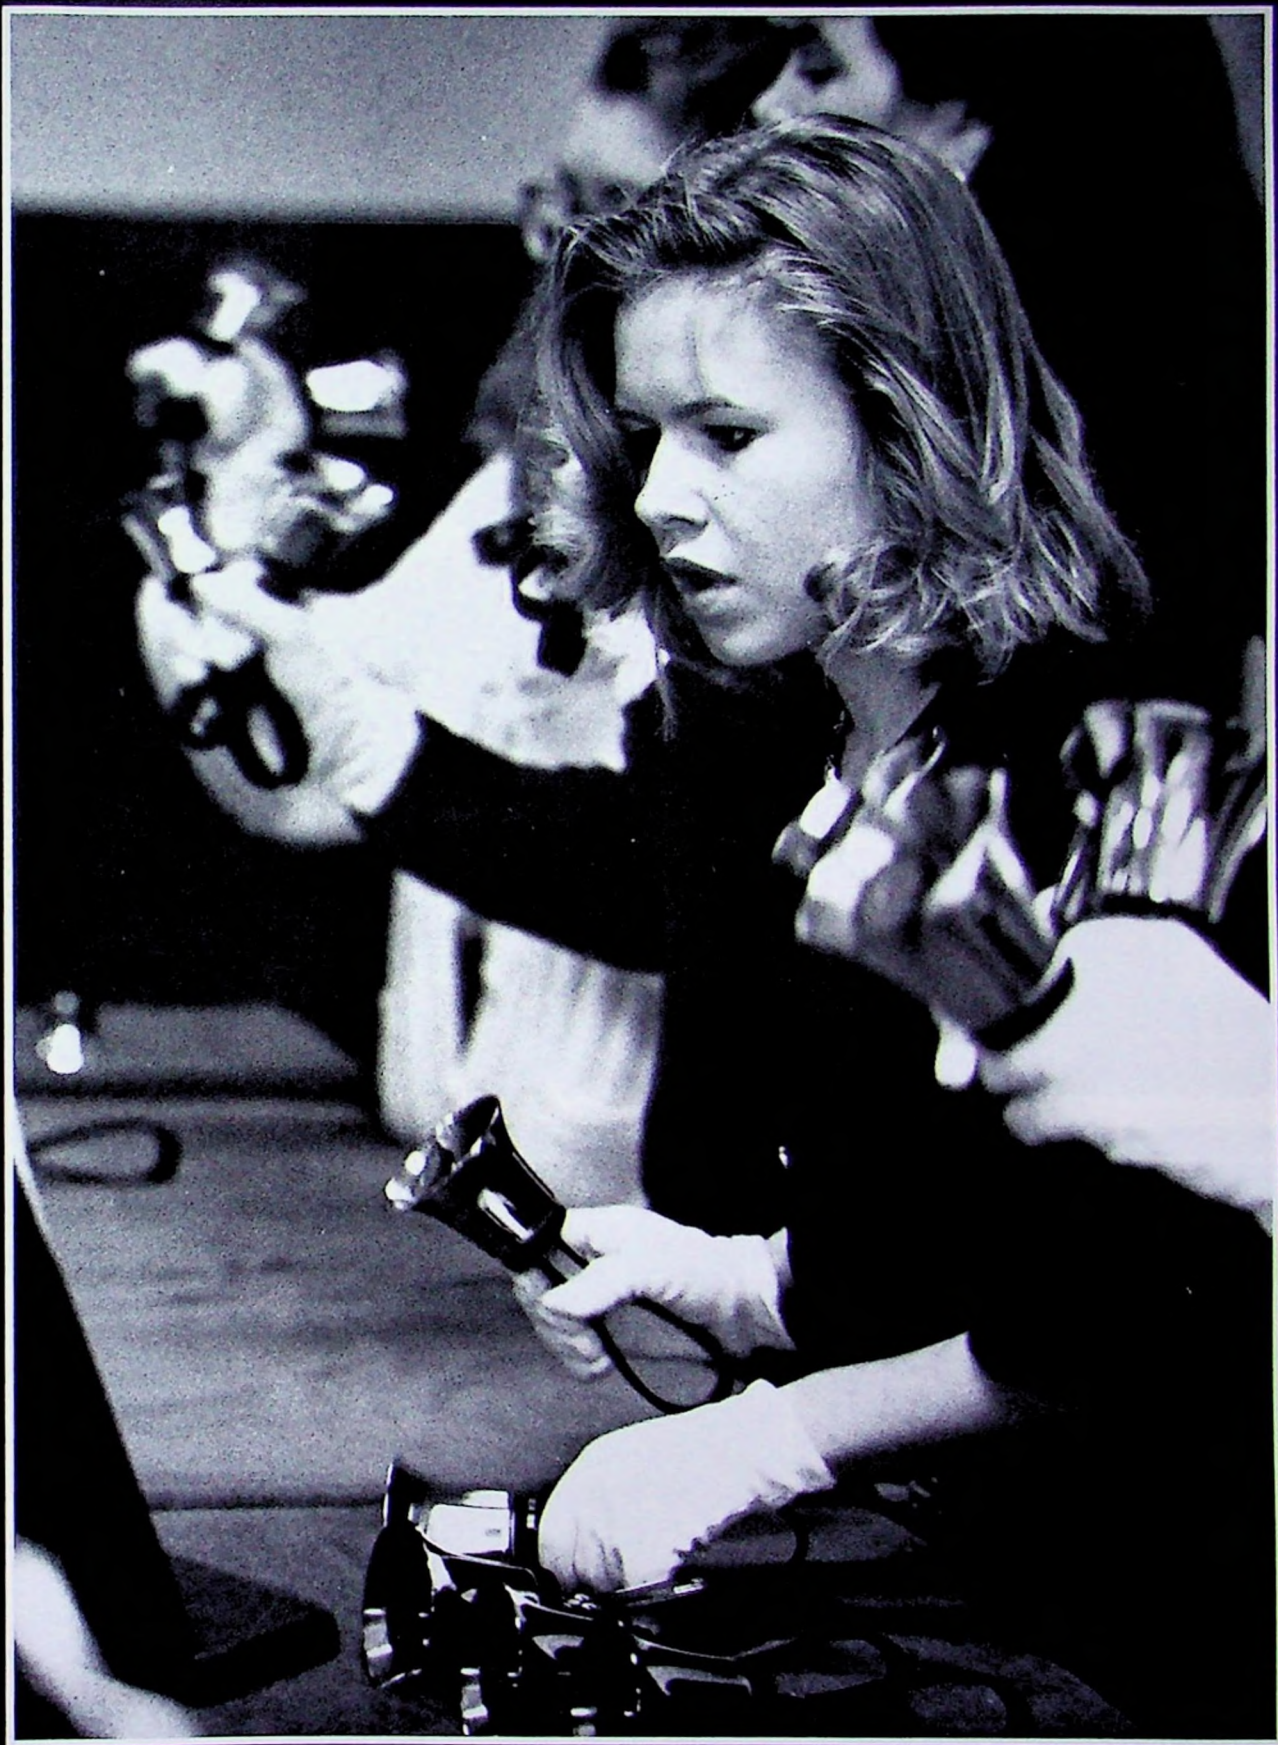

to the ends of the earth. — Acts. 1:8b

Celebration Singers

Celebration Singers, directed by RubyAnn Poulson, took to the road in the spring and fall delivering the straight-forward message of the new musical "Something Higher." This upbeat program brought up disturbing issues which are faced by today's youth — drugs, sex, divorce, and suicide. Although God was never directly mentioned, the search for a relationship with Him was clearly communicated throughout the performances. This allowed Celebration Singers to "penetrate the darkness" in secular high schools as well as in private schools.

Triumphant Sound members perform a skit with a very profound message in order to challenge their audience.

In addition to weekend performances twice a month, TS practiced many weekends and week nights in order to polish their parts and learn choreography.

Triumphant Sound

Those who were entertained by Triumphant Sound this year were probably not prepared for what was in store. Not only did TS have new faces and new attire, but it had a whole new style. With the aid of Jim Slyder, this scholarship group added choreography to their already outstanding performance. But unlike most "show choir" concerts, TS performances were for worship, not merely for entertainment.

Triumphant Sound members included (below): Jon Hanson, Calana Needham, Kami Nelson, Heath Ormord, Kim Manes, Dwight Bradshaw, Kelly Park, Harold Pittman, and David Brundage.

The first exposure most MCC'ers had to the "new" TS was on Parent's Weekend when the group performed at the Mexican Fiesta.

This year, MCC hosted the 3rd annual Parents' Weekend on September 22nd and 23rd. It was a time for students to show off the parents who so carefully nurtured, raised, and protected them through those critical years. Parents came from as far as Arizona to experience a day of campus life. From the sidelines of a soccer game to concerts by Triumphant Sound and Celebration Singers, parents experienced multiple facets of student life. Other activities included a special chapel, a cook-out, and a volleyball game. The big event ended with a taste of Mexico at the Mexican Fiesta where President Cable finished the exciting weekend with a profound "audios."

• The 3-1 soccer defeat of Friends Bible College was one of the most exciting highlights of Parents' Weekend.

• Troy Gilmore is downright excited about serving Mexican food!

• Julie Armstrong and her parents look on as TS performs for the parents following the Mexican Fiesta.

• The cookout following the soccer game was a chance for parents to get together and relax after a full day of activities.

"Jiggs" and Frances Wilson have always played a very active role in the life of MCC. Whether there be a sports event, a celebration, or a fundraising event, one can be sure they will be there in the center of it all, giving their full, fun-loving support. Because of their influence and dedication to MCC, their children and grandchildren have been an integral part of the school as students, staff members, board members, and supporters. For this reason, Jiggs and Frances were honored at Parents' Weekend for being two of the most outstanding parents of all.

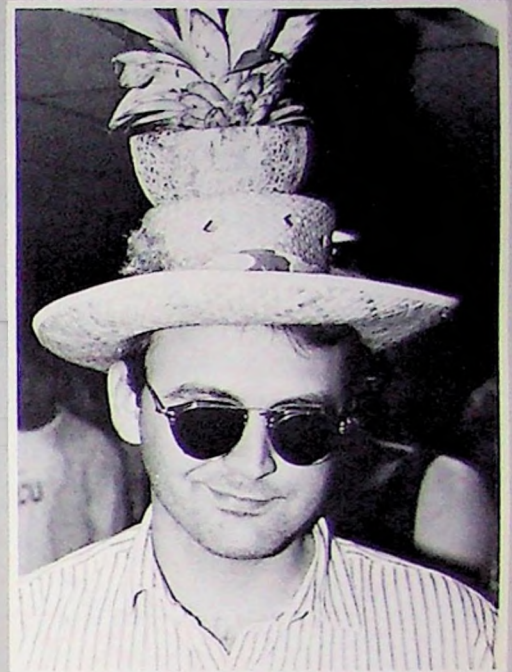

The plaque on the trophy case reads: "The lives and children of Donald "Jiggs" and Frances Wilson are a continuing part of the history of Manhattan Christian College. This gift is presented in recognition of their love for God, their unselfish Christian example, and their endless energy."

"For Such A Time As This"

The 13th Annual Woman's World was a great success. Over 400 (the highest recorded attendance) were encouraged in their faith for an uplifting 24 hours. The featured speaker, Marjorie Morgridge, challenged the ladies in their various roles in the family, in ministry, in the lives of others, and in their own spirituality. Music for the event was provided by the musical groups of MCC — Celebration Singers, Inspiration Ringers, Triumphant Sound, Chapel Band, and Rapture — and the workshops dealt with family issues. Although the time together passed quickly, it was a blessing to get away from routine life and learn how to serve the Lord in "such a time as this."

It was a great privilege to have contemporary Christian artist, Wayne Watson, as the special guest speaker for this event. He challenged the student body to be aware of their responsibility as spiritual leaders for this generation, with daily obedience being the key to "seizing the day."

Senior Soliloquy

We frame for our seniors some rather light rhyme
To show we've enjoyed having them all this time.
They've taught us a lot, that we'll not deny.
If we don't carry through, though, you'll understand why.

Noted for dry wit and his handwriting skill
Is illustrious Phil Alspaw, who dreams will fulfill.
An acute study-holic he'll never be,
But he'll go a long way, just between you and me.

Steve Isom, for a secretary Davinna Beale chose.
She'll have to move on now; she's taught him all she knows.
Innocent, peace maker, Divi's a true friend;
A helmeet for Todd—the two make a good blend.

Sweet Leslie Blatchford—well, what can we say?
Her smile has spread sunshine for many a day.
Her kind, gentle spirit extends to her cat,
She'll be a success in her life—and that's that.

Fun-loving Wendy Cott, a basketball champ
With a quite unique giggle will leave her stamp.
She's a true blond, from the roots to the ends.
Her joy is contagious; she has lots of friends.

Allergic to study, our friend Charley George
Spends much time with people, friendships to forge.
He has a concern for the rest of mankind
From tending the wounded to leading the blind.

Cheerleader, photographer, and bell ringer too
Is our Tara Griffin, scholar, decorator true.
She's a fun-loving lady who cuts quite a caper.
Her good friend "Yo Denny" will hand her the paper.

Famous Hal Hooper, the staid earring king,
Is anti-scholastic; he does his own thing.
Laid-back rock singer--now who can top that?
He'll make it in life, 'cause he knows where it's at.

A Westlink Timothy is our Scottie J.
Who's friendly, but quiet in his own sort of way.
He'll act like Rick Wright at the drop of a hat.
We're sorry a class couldn't remedy that.

Sincere, dedicated, and deeply intense,
Is our man Stu Koser, who, too, will commence.
He's done with his service for old Uncle Sam.
He's doing warfare for the greater I AM.

Russel Moldovan, with his bright charming smile
Relates to all ages, and does it in style
He's wild and he's crazy; he never gets mad.
He's left his mark here; and, yes, we are glad.

Then there's Billie Newport, a down-home kind of man
Who sings country music like no one else can.
A jack-of-all-trades, with six grandkids to boot.
He'll make a great preacher, man's sins to uproot.

Our own entertainment center, a guy named Scott Park
Enjoys baseball cards, analytical remark.
For Dr. Ed Wolfe, he could serve as a double.
He walks circumspectly; he's allergic to trouble.

Chef Lorri Patterson, an excellent cook,
Is organized, efficient, gets along with a book.
A teacher, musician, well-rounded is she.
She'll make it big time—that we'll guarantee.

Bass-voiced Jerry Patterson can hit a low E.
He's saturated with music; that's easy to see.
His dry sense of humor has entertained all.
He speaks with conviction; his talk is not small.

Our crazy Haitian, Yves Prophete is his name,
Has been here a long time, and we're glad he came.
His game is computer, he's musical too.
His smile is the biggest to come into our view.

Tim Snell can't sing, and that's no joke.
He told us himself, our response to evoke.
Good student, creative, a real Christian is he.
Yes, we can be proud that he's our Timothy.

Genae Willich can sing, and that's the truth.
In beauty and brains she's not lacking, forsooth.
Ingenious, hard working; she won't try to chuck it.
I guess we could say, she's got it all in a bucket.

A head full of knowledge Mark Wilson carries 'round.
Of body he's healthy; of mind he is sound.
Person-oriented, he loves to roam
To talk to whomever he might find at home.

Intelligent, subdued, with a quiet exterior
Is our Jenny Zink, a lady superior.
Under the surface she's a fun-loving gal
Who'll entertain you and become quite a pal.

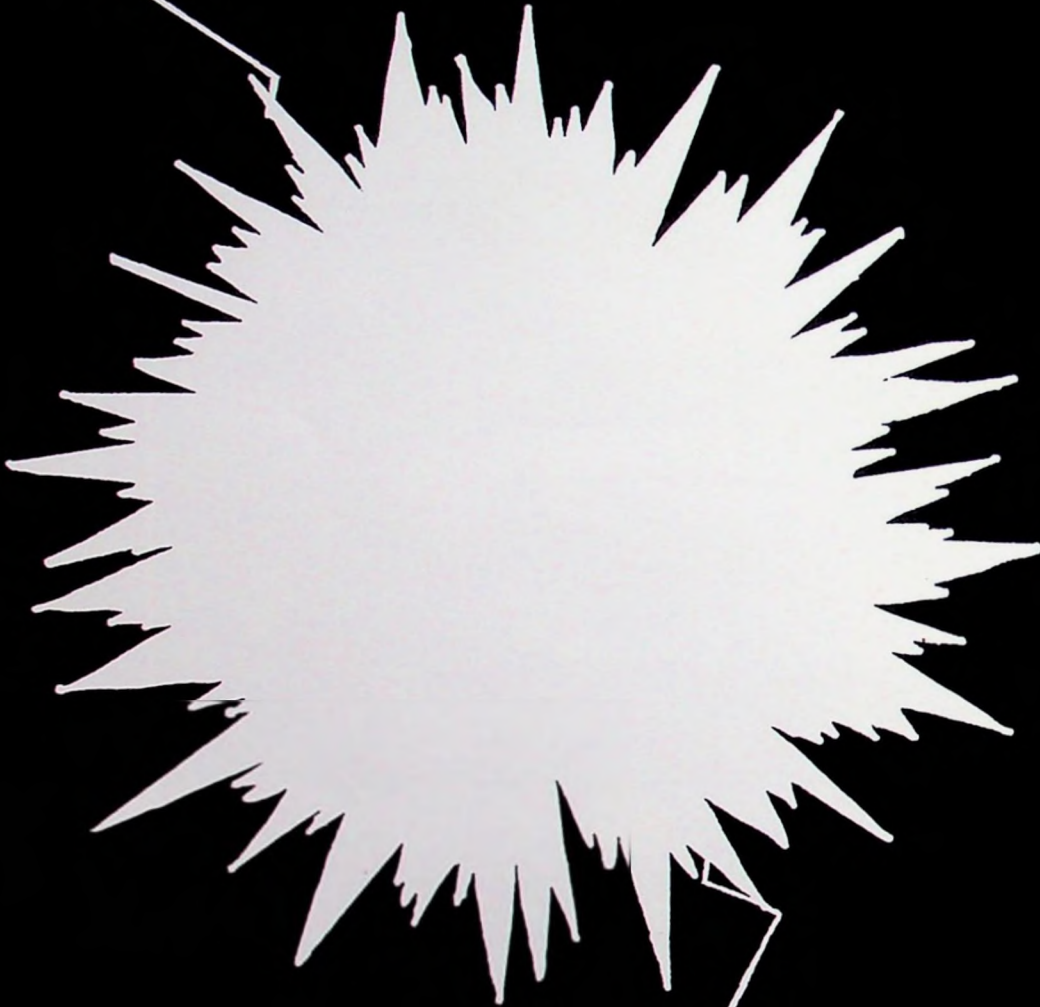

So these are our seniors, who will be commencing.
We'll miss them next year, this we're already sensing.
We ask them to always remember servility
Will get them much farther than lack of humility.

- Ruth Ann Warren

STUCO

Executive Council

▲ Executive Council: Terri Spurgeon (treas.), Tracey Diaz (secr.), Todd Manes (pres.), Hal Hooper (vice pres.).

▲ SAC (Student Activities Committee) members participate in the most satisfying activity they've planned all year — the binding and gagging of the Dean of Students, Rick Wright, (Todd Hutchison, chairman)

◆ The group who keeps the school's focus in the right place — Student Spiritual Life. (Kelly Hayes, chairman)

Committees also represented in STUCO: yearbook, spirit, concert, food service. In addition, there are representatives from each house and each class who participate in the decision-making and the planning of activities.

STUCO (Student Council) exists in order to enrich the lives of the student body. Every week, representatives from campus committees meet in order to plan events and discuss improvements that would benefit the school. Events sponsored by STUCO this year included: The All-School Retreat, Parents' Weekend, Aloha Classic, the Christmas dinner, SKIP Day, and the Wayne Watson concert. STUCO also designed a new t-shirt for the school and used funds in order to improve the chapel.

◆ Todd Manes (pres.) discusses information concerning the Wayne Watson concert with STUCO members.

◆ Todd, Justin, and Guppie obviously benefited from the STUCO boxed dinner auction.

◆ STUCO makes yet another decision that will affect the lives of the student body.

Camp Teams

Every year, the recruitment office seeks applications from students who are willing to take nine weeks out of their life and lay it all on the line; for students who naively or intentionally choose to be the subject of numerous pranks; and who are willing to drink gallons of Kool-Aid, sing "Kum Ba Yah" and "Pass It On" a million times, and hear "Friends Are Friends Forever" at each tearful camp closing. These people even have opportunities to prepare instant lessons on unknown topics and work with deans who aren't sure what to do with them—all of this on 5 hours of sleep a night. Amazingly enough, though, the office receives plenty of applications for just a few positions. Listed below are those who were blessed to receive this abridged package of delirium.

The Ad-Team is by no means ever out of work. Throughout the year, students from this 28 member group work to assist the recruitment office in every way possible. Not only do they host high school events on campus and work with Bible Bowl tournaments, but they can also be called upon at any time to do mailings, show prospective students around campus, and help with lock-ins.

FOCUS

FOCUS is a dream realized for Kelly Garritson, who envisioned a group at MCC equipped to spread the gospel to non-Christian young people, as well as spread an inspiration for boldness to Christian youth groups. The group used comedic sketches, dramatic interpretations, dance, and some speaking to get across their message of celebrating the new life we have in Christ.

Members include: Mindy Arnold, Chris Reynolds, Rebecca Sack, Jessica Yantis, Keith Brooks, Kelly Garritson, Wendy Boulais, Kelly Wilson, Scott Spradlin, Dan Mitchell, Heather McCune, Paula Ratliff, Cindy Crafton, Lisa Bahm, Wendy Orrick, Matt Souder, and Kurtis Shearer.

► Rebecca Sack, guest journalist, brainstorms on ideas for yearbook pages.

▲ "Oh, you push the keys and it makes little letters!"

◆ Vision staff: Kelly Hayes (asst. editor), Cassie Stipe, Dan Thompson (cover design), Tara Griffin (editor), Scott Jenkins, Tracey Diaz, and Troy Gilmore; sponsor — Jolene Rupe.

"Kelly, how do you spell relief?" (N-A-P) Scott says. "Don't bring it!" ▲

President Cable: A Man Who Is Much Appreciated...

"This man travels for the school almost constantly and still finds time to play on the best intramural softball team ever! President Cable, thank you for always taking an interest in the lives of us students — not just in the politics of running the college. I will miss hassling you next year!" (Colossians 3:23-24)

— Paula Ratliff, student

"Ken Cable's sincere support and encouragement was a major factor in my life as a student. His job was demanding, but his disposition and calm outlook were always a source of strength for myself and other students. I greatly admire and respect him."

— Denise Wren, alumna

"Although President Cable has to spend a lot of time in matters of administration, he always has time for students. He sees us as individuals rather than just parts of a collective whole."

— Scott Park, student

"President Cable has the broadest shoulders of any man that I have known. He is 'the rock that shall not be moved' when it comes to Manhattan Christian College."

— Jolene Rupe, administrator

"It seems like President Cable always has a positive outlook toward the school and the students regardless of what happens."

— Becky Lovelady, student

"Taking time to be a part of the students' lives, whether it's whipping someone at ping pong (again) or winning the 'Cy Young' award in slow-pitch softball, he makes time for us and our interests."

— Todd Manes, student

"I think President Cable is a very dedicated, positive, leadership-oriented person. The college has/will continue to move forward under his administration."

— Floyd Sack, investor

"The President has been an encouragement to me in that he is always willing to stop and give a friendly 'Hello' with a smile. I appreciate that."

— Wendy Orrick, student

"The most impressive thing about Ken is his dedication and faith. He impresses me as a man of much prayer with a great faith in God."

— Steve Isom, professor

"What a tomato picker! He's a pro!"

— Genae Willich, student

"His personal commitment to the Lord and MCC is very evident. I'd like to thank him for his guidance and caring, and for the way he and his family share in a personal way."

— Char Means

"One morning Ken called me into the office and said he just wanted me to pray with him — he was under a heavy load. I respect him for seeking after God's help."

— Hiram Cassel, administrator

"No matter how bad things are, he can always look on the bright side of things, and he always has a concern for people."

— Alan Funk, alumna

"I am so impressed with the heart of Ken Cable and his service to the school. When I heard that he came into school in the wee hours of the morning, the man became a legend to me."

— Todd Hutchison, student

"The main thing I appreciate about Ken Cable is his world view for the mission of the church. His concerns are not merely focused on the college, but on the kingdom as a whole."

— Don Wilson, board member and alumna

"I really appreciate President Cable because, although he is so busy, he always takes time to find out how I'm doing. This isn't on the run, either — he means it! Thanks, Pres! You've saved many a day!"

— Tim Snell, student

"He amazes me. I don't know how anyone could encounter so many obstacles and still proceed with such positive determination!"

— Tara Griffin, student

"Looking back on the years that President Cable has given to this school, he has been a pillar of strength with a woman behind him cheering all the way!"

— Pam Goodwin, alumna

"President Cable is one of the most supportive bosses a secretary could have. Never once has he ever made any of us feel stupid or worthless, and his sense of humor is always evident."

— Linda Taylor, staff

"From day one, President Cable was so personable and always approachable. With all the important people that he knows, he still made me feel like he cared about me in a real way."

— Harvey Friesen, alumna

"Kenneth Cable is giving leadership to the great work of Manhattan Christian College. Through times of stress, he has sustained hope and purpose ... and vision. Praise God for his ministry."

— Darel Boston, board member and alumna

"I have really appreciated President Cable's dedication. Even in the very early 'study' hours of the morning (4:00 a.m.), I've seen the lights on in his office."

— Natalie McVay, student

"I appreciate hard workers, so I appreciate the efforts he puts out for the continued ministry of the school."

— Virgil Warren, professor

"He is one that is genuinely interested in the school. If he is in town and there is something going on with the school, count him there."

— Scott Johannes, student

"President Cable is a man called by God. He always spoke to me straight and was always willing to make any sacrifice necessary for the sake of his calling. You've got to appreciate an example like that."

— Doug Peake, alumna

"As President Cable speaks, his heart to us so true. Our ears begin to peak, he keeps our interest cued."

— Davinna Beale, student

"He's a very dedicated, considerate, Christian man. It really is a pleasure and a privilege to work with him."

— Gerrie Kaste, personal secretary

"President Cable is a Christian leader who never stops working to advance God's kingdom. He knows the need for and the power of fervent prayer. He has a vision for Manhattan Christian College and is willing to persevere through hard times, giving sacrificially in so many ways. In order to make that vision a reality, I am so thankful that we have him as the president of MCC."

— Dennis Glenn, Executive Vice-President

"President Cable is willing to find out how everyone is doing and to share about his road trips, as well, despite his busy schedule."

— Mike Victory, alumna

"To President Cable: It has been a pleasure working with you. 'DOG-GONE,' you are a great boss!"

Stability and Creativity

The message of God's Word is one of eternal stability. At Dallas Seminary, this truth stems from a 65-year history of uncompromising, conservative theology and a highly respected and experienced faculty.

It's easy to see why Dallas has earned a reputation as a school where men and women can receive a thorough preparation for a variety of Christian ministries.

While we recognize the importance of stability, it becomes even more effective when combined with creativity.

At Dallas, that means finding new ways to meet today's challenges with innovations in Christian ministry.

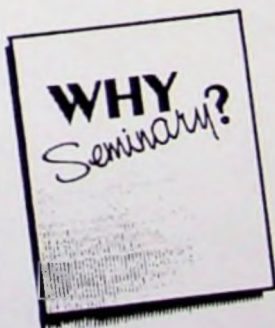

At Dallas Seminary, we believe there is no replacement for this dynamic combination of stability and creativity.
